WM. E. PELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS.

A PASSAGE IN IRISH HISTORY.

The late decision of the Supreme Court of the United States proclaiming the sacredness of the great writ of liberty brings forcibly to mind one of the most interesting passages in Irish history, in which the great orator, Curran, and Theobold Wolfe Tone, one of the most extraordinary men Ireland ever produced, were the principal characters.

In the year 1795, Tone, then a young man, became compromised with the society of United Irishmen, an organization having for its object the Independence of Ireland. He fled to this country, bringing with him his wife and children and all his worldly possessions. At that time France was in the heat of a revolution, and at war with England. Tone, restless in his exile, conceived the plan of engaging the French Government in an expedition for the conquest of Ireland. He re crossed the ocean, appealed to the French Directory, and soon persuaded them to undertake the execution of his favorite scheme. Several expeditions were fitted out, but were dispersed by storms.—Tone accompanied them all, with the rank of Adjutant General in the French army. Finally the vessel he was in was captured, after a desperate resistance, by an English frigate, and Tone, being recognized by an old acquaintance, was at once brought before a court-martial for trial. He attempted no defence. So far from denying the acts charged against him, he admitted them all, and gloried in them. "Under the flag of the French Republic," said he to the court, "I originally engaged with the view to save and liberate my country. For that purpose I have repeatedly braved the terrors of the ocean, covered, as I knew it to be, with the triumphant fleet of that power which it was my glory and my duty to oppose. I have sacrificed my views in live, I have courted poverty; I have left a beloved wife unprotected, and children whom I adore fatherless. After such sacrifices in a cause which I have always conscientiously considered as the cause of justice and of freedom, it is no great effort at this day to add the sacrifice of my life." And then he added, "I wish to spare the court all useless trouble. The charge against me I presume is that I have been found in arms against the soldiers of the King in my native country. I admit the accusation in its most extended sense. From my earliest youth I have regarded the connection between England and Ireland as the curse of the Irish nation, and felt convinced that while it lasted this country could never be free or happy. As to that connection, therefore, I repeat it, all that has been imputed to me—works, writings, and actions—I here deliberately avow. I have spoken and acted with reflection and on principle, and am ready to meet the consequences. Whatever be the sentence of the court, I am prepared for it. Its members will surely discharge their duty; I shall take care not to be wasting in mine." The sentence of the court was that he die on the scaffold within forty-eight hours.

There was one friend who did not forsake the young patriot in that trying hour. That friend was Curran, who had known Tone in his boyhood, and loved him, and who was determined that this outrage upon law should not be consummated without resistance from him. What followed we give in the language of Charles Phillips:

On the morning of the day fixed for the execution, the moment the Court of King's Bench opened, the dauntless advocate advanced, leading Tone's aged father by the hand, who produced an affidavit that his son had been brought before a bench of officers who had sentenced him to death. The scene at the moment passes all description—the breathless crowd, the heart-broken old man, the pure and venerable judge, and, above all, the voluntary and unrivalled advocate, the real friend—misfortune's friend—who, while others held aloof, alone stood forward to hold the ægis of the law between injustice and its victim; to be appreciated, it must have been seen.

"I do not pretend," began Curran, "that Mr. Tone is not guilty of the charge of which he is accused. I presume the officers were honorable men. But it is stated in this affidavit, as a solemn fact, that Mr. Tone had no commission under his Majesty, and therefore no court martial could have cognizance of any crime imputed to him while the Court of King's Bench sat in the capacity of the great Criminal Court of the land. In times when war was raging, when man was opposed to man in the field, courts martial might be endured; but every law authority is with me, while I stand upon the sacred and immutable principle of the Constitution, that martial law and civil law are incompatible, and that the former must cease with the existence of the latter. This is not, however, the time for arguing this momentous question. My client must appear in Court. He is cast for death this very day. He may be ordered for execution while I address you. I call on the Court to support the law, and move for a writ of habeas corpus, to be directed to the provost marshal of the barracks and Major Sandys, to bring up the body of Tone."

Chief Justice. "Have a writ instantly prepared."

Curran. "My client may die while the writ is preparing."

Chief Justice. "Mr. Sheriff, proceed to the barracks, and acquaint the Provost Marshal that a writ is preparing to suspend Mr. Tone's execution, and see that he be not executed."

In a short time the Sheriff, having returned, thus addressed the court:

"My Lord, I have been to the barracks in pursuance of your order. The Provost Marshal says he must obey Major Sandys. Major Sandys says he must obey Lord Cornwallis."

At this time Mr. Curran announced the return of Mr. Tone's father with a message that Gen. Craig refused to obey the writ of habeas corpus.

Chief Justice. "Mr. Sheriff, take the body of Tone into custody. Take the Provost Marshal and Major Sandys into custody, and show the order of the Court to Gen. Craig."

It was now universally believed that the military authorities, who had thus presumed to trifle with the powers of the King's Bench, would have Tone executed on the instant. Lord Kilwarden, a great constitutional judge, was very much affected. "His agitation," said Curran, "was magnificent." It soon transpired, however, that Tone, indignant at the menaced degradation of his death, had with a small penknife, which he had managed to conceal, inflicted such a wound in his throat that he had little to fear from this world's jurisdiction. The Chief Justice, however, as a matter of precaution, ordered a writ to be issued suspending the execution. It is said on the surgeon expressing an opinion that as the carotid artery had escaped, the wound was not necessarily fatal, Tone faintly muttered, "I am sorry then to find that I have been so bad an anatomist." He survived, however, in silent agony for seven days, when the surgeon, seeing he was sinking, whispered to an attendant, you must keep him as quiet as possible. If he speaks he dies." "I thank you, sir," said Tone, who had overheard him, "you could not give me more welcome news. What would I wish to live for?" and expired.

WM. E. PELL, | SEATON GALES, EDITORS.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, APRIL 3, 1867.

THE PEOPLE WANT LIGHT.

The great body of the people, both white and colored, in this State, are in positions in which they cannot be reached by the public press. Their information in regard to public affairs is crude, confused and slender. They have heard that the Southern States are placed under military rule for the purpose of reconstruction, and that all the blacks, twenty-one years of age, and certain portions of the whites, will be permitted to register their names as voters, and that they will be expected to elect delegates to a State Convention, but why this is to be done, what white persons, precisely, will be allowed to vote, what is to be the object of the Convention, what kind of men should be selected as delegates, and what are to be the specific results of the whole business, are matters about which thousands are totally ignorant.

Gen. Sickles, no doubt, will make much of this plain when he issues his order for the registration, but, in the ordinary course of its publication, thousands will not see it, and thousands will not understand it when they do see it. The whole subject is one of great moment, involving the most serious consequences in the future, and, therefore, it is of the highest importance that all our people should act understandingly and with proper caution.

It is of the very highest importance that every man in the State, entitled to vote, should have his name registered as a voter.—This should be by no means neglected.—How men should vote, will depend upon their own convictions of right and duty.—They should certainly vote only for good and true men, upon whom they can rely, who can best represent their views and wishes. But in order to do this, they must know their characters and their antecedents. It would be a fatal mistake to vote for men because they profess to be right now. Can you believe them? Can you trust them, when their past history shows that they have been fickle changelings, and unreliable in all political matters. We want men of sense, men of discretion, men whose feelings and sympathies are in accord with the great body of the people, men who sincerely love the country, who are anxious for the restoration and preservation of the Union, but men who "have no friends to reward and no enemies to punish."

But how shall the people obtain the requisite information? The course is plain. Intelligent citizens in every county in the State should throw off all morbid sensitiveness in the matter, lay aside all unnecessary modesty, and propose to address the people calmly upon the subject. The colored people are anxious to hear from their old, long tried friends on these subjects.—They will readily convene at suitable times and places to hear addresses from their white friends. These times and places should be selected for their convenience, and the object should be to give them information. We advise against all attempts at excitement, all demagogical speeches or all discussions before them on set occasions by political wranglers of different views.—As a rule, all attempts to excite and mislead them, should be frowned down by all parties. The whites should be addressed also on special occasions and for the same purpose and ends. The canvass, when it commences, will afford a sufficient arena for gradiatorial for efforts and partizan discussions. What we mean is, that those addresses to spread information, should begin at once, and should precede the canvass, but they should be free from contentions and strifes, and hence there should be no discussions pro and con carried on in advance of the canvass.

BRAZIL.

The articles furnished us by our intelligent correspondent W. upon the physical, geographical, and political character of Brazil, we are glad to know, have been read with much interest by many of our intelligent readers, and have awakened considerable enquiry. His information has been drawn from the best sources and may be regarded as reliable as any information which could be obtained, short of actual inspection and personal observation. The writer designs visiting Brazil this Spring, if possible, on a trip of observation. He will probably be accompanied by others. We are glad to be assured that our correspondent will furnish our readers the results of his visit. Two more numbers after to-day will complete the series of articles he designs writing at present, and they will be found to possess equal interest with those which have gone before. The entire series have been written with singular felicity and ability, and, what is of still greater importance, with fidelity, as far as his source of informations would allow.

HAWLEY.—The late Holdenite meeting in this City telegraphed to Gov. Hawley, of Connecticut, and Gov. Hawley, of Connecticut, telegraphed back to the late Holdenite meeting in this City. They were mutually felicitous, congratulatory, and cordial. The Holdenites hoped that Hawley would triumph, and Hawley said that the action of the Holdenites would help him to triumph. The people of Connecticut, however, did not see the thing in that light.—Hawley retires to private life, and our North Carolina Radicals, on their very first trial, have made a water loup-ch?

THE FARMER.—The April number of the Farmer, published by Messrs. Elliott & Shields is to hand and its contents are valuable.

"BEHIND THE TIMES."

We published, on Monday, an extract from the introductory address of that Nestor of the Press, Thurlow Weed, of Albany, on resuming, after a five years' absence from the journalistic and political arena, the responsibilities of Editorial life. In reviewing the great events that have transpired within that momentous interval, he indulges the apprehension of his inability to keep pace with the giant strides of Progress. In fewer words, he expresses the fear that, with his unchanged and antiquated views of government and principles, he may find himself "behind the times." The suggestion is pregnant with many and mingled reflections.

Yes, Progress is the word and the reality, and we believe in Progress,—of the right sort; advancement in morals, in learning, in the development of material resources and energies, and in the expansion of the salutary designs and principles of government. Of such Progress we cannot have too much.

But all advancement is not Progress, just as license is not always liberty. Could the mighty shades of Washington, Jefferson, or Jackson, of Webster, Clay or Calhoun, "revisit the glimpses" of this latter day, they would hardly recognize, in military satrapies and obliterated States, the evidences of real Progress. They would be compelled to confess that they were decidedly "behind the times." Could Marshall, Kent or Story re-clothe themselves with the ermine, which they adorned in life, they would surely be unable, with their "old-fogy" ideas of constitutional gurantees and principles, to catch hold of even the skirts of that seven-leagued modern political Progress, (so-called,) which "marches on," dethroning constitutions and sovereignties that may be in its path. They, too, would realize that they were "behind the times."

And yet much of the Progress by which we are surrounded is not delusive,—much of it is really beneficent. Franklin, flying his kite and drawing a feeble spark from the electric cloud, or printing his "Poor Richard" Almanac on a wooden press, with wooden type, would hail, as glorious Progress, the mammoth dailies thrown with thought-rapidity from monster machines impelled by steam, and using the lightning itself as a tributary to their thousand sources of intelligence. And the advances that have been made in the industrial and mechanic arts have outstripped the wildest imaginings of Whitney or Arkwright, while the perfection that the humanitarian arts have attained exceeds the most sanguine aspirations of a Howard.

Wilberforce, viewing the emancipation of millions of a race long held in serfdom, however humane and mild the system, and their sudden endowment with all the immunities of the most favored citizens, would doubtless hail it as Progress of the grandest type. Whether it be really so, is the problem to be solved. Under wise auspices, it may prove the most majestic stride of time. Under adverse and mischievous counsels, it may wreck much that has preceded it. We will hope for the best.

SECRET POLITICAL ORGANIZATIONS.

Strong efforts are being made in many sections to form secret political organizations in the several Counties in this State, both among black and white. Whatever may be the objects of these associations, in our judgment they are always dangerous, and pernicious in their results. The fate of the Republic, by the management of these secret associations, though composed of a minority of the people and those the most ignorant, may be at their mercy. The writer of this article has never given his sanction to any secret political organization and never will. Know Nothingism met its deserved fate quickly, whatever of good was in it, because of the lurking evils connected with it. And such must be the fate of all other secret political organizations in any government where there is an approach to freedom, when the people recover from the demoralization of the times.

In political matters every citizen should be left free from the trammels of any organization, whether secret or public, to act upon his own convictions of duty. The man, black or white, who binds himself by an oath to a secret political association, in a time of peace, shows that he is not only unfit to exercise the rights of a freeman, but that he is an unsafe member of society—dangerous to the peace and harmony of the community and to the State.

Every man of sense and of any personal or political integrity, should urge strongly upon both races, to shun as a viper all secret political organizations. Whatever use or value they might have been in a time of war, they can only be pernicious now, when every man's political views and purposes should be known and openly manifest. These associations, however well designed as they start, are usually perverted to mischief by leading and designing men. Let every honest man, black and white, avoid them.—Let every man stand firm in his resistance to political jugglery and violent partizanship, and look to the speedy restoration of peace and Union.

WE CAN conceive of nothing so supremely ridiculous as the intimation that the white men who recently assembled in Convention, in this City, are "all acceptable to Congress," and that, therefore, it is best either to affiliate with them, or to leave the entire matter of reconstruction in their hands. Upon what ground is the opinion based?—Two-thirds of them are disfranchised by Congress. One of them was rejected by Congress for a foreign mission. Several of them voted, in the Legislature, against the Howard Amendment, and still others against even allowing persons of color to testify in the courts of justice. They are, judged by the very best tests that can be applied, of all men the most unacceptable to Congress.—We fear that those few who put up the plea that it is best to unite with them, on the ground that the Congress looks with a favorable eye upon them, are inclined to such an affiliation by natural instincts and political proclivity.

FEMALE EDUCATION.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I have been a good deal concerned, as well as amused, to find that opinions on the subject of female education are so very discordant. This will appear from the following detail, in which I hope I am not guilty of betraying confidence:

Not long ago, I was in company with a number of persons, who spent the evening in conversation—a very unfashionable, and some may think a very dull and heavy way of spending time. Be this as it may, we all seemed to be pleased with it. Our chat was, in general, very desultory. The attention of the company, however, was closely engaged for a time on the question, "When ought a young lady to be regarded as fit for marriage?" Now, although marriage is almost as old as the creation, I find that people of every age and condition take a lively interest in it to this day. And when this question was started, every one was ready to give an opinion.

One, a rough, free-spoken man, who was generally believed to be wealthy, and to have "an eye to the main chance" as well as another, declared very bluntly that he wanted nothing in a wife but an agreeable person,—habits of industry and frugality, a good fortune, good health, and skill to cut out a shirt and cook a good dinner. As for accomplishments, he despised them. He wanted no gabbling of French about him—he wanted no more tinkling on the old instrument, it had become too much of the tin-pan order. A woman, after marriage, commonly used her piano as a side-board; and a cabinet-maker could furnish one at a cheaper rate, and better suited to the purpose. And as to painting and drawing, he had often had his ingenuity tasked to the uttermost to be civil and yet not tell a lie, when fond mothers had shown the wretched copies of heads and landscapes, made by their daughters, and stuck up in frames to be exhibited to every visitor.

This tirade drew from me the remark—made, however, in a whisper, to an interesting girl sitting by me—that the gentleman talked like a rich old bachelor. With great vivacity, and with an arch look towards the man, she whispered in my ear—as I am a little deaf—loud enough, I feared, to be heard by others, "Why sir, they say he is nine and thirty."

The first speaker having exhausted his common-places, was silent;—and another, of entirely different character, took up the subject. His eye was languishing, and his voice feminine. His linen was faultless, and his hair adjusted to the ton, without the displacement of a strand. He talked of sylph-like forms, and swimming motions, and angelic sweetness, and electric rapidity of thought and feeling, and fifty other things of this sort, borrowed from fifty different novels, all in the character of a confirmed sentimentalist. In truth,—if there was any truth at all in such a fellow,—he was in love with an imaginary being,—the creature of his own fancy, to whom he had given a "name" indeed, but no "local habitation":—for that was impossible.

Another man thought that the schooling of a year or two might be very well; and that attention to domestic economy was certainly necessary; but that a young lady ought by all means to go into company, and see how the world lives, before she tied herself to a husband and home for life. This speaker declared that good company was the best school in the world; and that a winter or two in town, under the care of a judicious friend, would be an admirable finish of the preparatory course.

As the conversation advanced, the interest of the speakers increased. The speaking at first—to borrow musical terms—was in solo and a little too stiff and stately; but soon became a duet with more ease and animation, then a trio—then a quartette—and at last, as no doubt you have often observed in a promiscuous company, it turned into a full chorus—every one in the room speaking at once, and none listening—for nobody could listen in such circumstances. As to myself, being somewhat deaf, and, unfortunately, nervous too, the jargon like to have run me crazy.

Now what do you think about female education?

CONTRIBUTION FROM MONTANA.—General Lee has received a communication from Montana, inclosing money for the Southern Orphan's Fund, and thus announces the fact to the Treasurer of the Association at Richmond:

Mrs. E. A. F. Mears, Treasurer Southern Orphans' Association, Baltimore, Md:

I have the pleasure of transmitting to you three hundred and seventy-seven dollars and fifty cents, presented by the citizens of Virginia city, Montana terrritoy, who, becoming apprised of the intention of erecting an asylum for the orphans of the "Confederate dead," have generously sent this amount to aid in its erection, through Mr. Wm. Ellinger, of your city.

Wishing the ladies of your association every success in their benevolent enterprise,

I am, with great respect,
Your obedient servant,
R. E. LEE.

Lexington, Va., March 27, 1867.

OUR NEW POSSESSIONS—WHY RUSSIA CEDED THEM.—The cession excites intense interest. Influential parties regard it as significant of Russian policy, in view of impending European complications on the eastern question. Russia cedes her American territory for the same reasons that induced Napoleon to sell Louisiana. In the event of a war Russia would probably lose this territory, and by parting with it the Czar secures the friendship of our Government. The English representative is deeply chagrined, and it is said that Sir Frederick Brucé will telegraph to Earl Derby for instructions to protest against its acceptance by our Government.—Letter in New York Express.

CONGRESS—IMPEACHMENT.—Congress has adjourned, and the people breathe more freely. The adjournment was announced to be until July, but it is claimed by the moderate men as an adjournment until December, unless something unforeseen of a very extraordinary character shall induce them to reassemble. The Impeachment project is virtually abandoned, and it was a knowledge of this fact that so angered Messrs. Schenck, Boutwell, Butler and men of a like way of thinking, when they found that the adjournment was inevitable. Sun.

THE BANKRUPT LAW.—Congress having refused to change the time of putting this law into operation, it is presumed that Chief Justice Chase will, as soon as possible, proceed to the appointment of the commissioners of bankruptcy in the different districts of the country. The term of the Supreme Court, which commenced yesterday, affords opportunity to confer with the justices of the different circuits on the subject.

The Illinois Legislature, previous to adjournment, passed a law making it high demeanor for any manager of a lunatic asylum to receive a patient not declared insane by a jury.

A young lady named Bennett, aged 16, has been refused admission to the Methodist College, in Pittsburg, on her second term, it having been discovered that she has African blood in her veins.

BRAZIL—No. 7.

PROVINCE OF SAN PAULO.

For the intellectual cultivation and refinement of its inhabitants, and for the social and political eminence and number of its distinguished men and native statesmen, San Paulo has always maintained a high rank among the Provinces of the Empire.—Its inhabitants are robust and vigorous, courteous and hospitable. From the earliest days of the Empire, the Paulistas have been distinguished for their daring enterprise, and strong attachment to their native soil, regarding their Province as, in old times, the Virginians fondly venerated the "Old Dominion." It is the Virginia of Brazil.

The Province lies between latitudes 20 and 25 degrees South, and has an area of about 176,000 square miles, or nearly the size of Virginia, North and South Carolina and Georgia combined. The table lands approach very near the sea throughout the entire seaboard, having an elevation of 2,000 to 3,000 feet. From this elevation the lands slope Westward, and consequently there are no rivers, of much size, emptying into the Atlantic. The only one of any importance is the Ribeira, flowing through the South-Eastern corner, and which is navigable for ordinary steamers to the village of Xiririca, a distance of 200 miles from the sea. Flowing Westward, however, and emptying into the Parana, (a tributary of the Plata) and the Western boundary of San Paulo, are several important rivers, all rising in the sea coast range of hills and within a short distance of the sea. The most important is the Tiete, which flows through the centre and nearly the whole width of the Province. Throughout the valleys of these rivers are vast bodies of most fertile lands, the black or terras pretas, and most of our people who have explored this Province are possessed with the idea that these valleys will be found as well, if not better, adapted to coffee than the terras roxhas of the hills. In the valley of the Inquia stands a coffee tree, which yielded, in 1865, a crop of 44 lbs. of coffee. But we suspect that, though the quantity of coffee produced may be as great, the quality may be found interior. But it is not alone in the valleys of this Province that the rich lands are found; every hill is composed of Coffee lands, and on its plains, in the region of Scrocaba, are found some of the most productive lands of the Empire, yielding over two thousand lbs. of seed cotton to the acre.

Elevated as this Province is throughout almost its entire extent, the climate is temperate, exceedingly agreeable and very healthful. Except immediately on the rivers, and the low lands of the sea coast, malarial diseases are unknown and intermittent fevers are never heard of. In the South-western portions, where the hills become mountains, cases of goitre are found. These mountains are rich in minerals. Previous to 1800 over 70 tons of gold had been mined. Iron ore abounds, and silver, copper, and precious stones are also found. But since the attention of Brazilians has been turned to coffee, its production has been found so easy and profitable that the richest mines have been abandoned for its cultivation.

The chief agricultural productions are coffee, cotton, sugar, tobacco, rice, tea (Chinese) and breadstuffs. Wheat has been raised of excellent quality, but for the want of proper mills, its culture has been mostly abandoned. The Province has two good harbors, those of Santos, near the centre of the coast line, and Mar Pequeno, or Iguape, the outlet of the Ribeira river region. In 1862, the direct foreign exports amounted to $9,256,430, and the imports to $1,130,530.

Education is provided for by 211 primary schools, about 120 private schools, and the famous Law College of the city of St. Paulo, comprising, in 1862, eleven schools and some 400 students. The population of the Province is about 800,000, of which about 80,000 are slaves.

This Province has, thus far, been the favorite of our people who have turned their attention to Brazil. There are already four settlements in progress of establishment; one under the auspices of of Dr. Gaston, of Columbia, S. C., on the Ribeira river; one by people of Louisiania, on the Inquia, under the lead of Rev. Mr. Dunn; and another of Texans, on the San Lorenza, both of these last named rivers being tributaries of the Ribeira. The location of another settlement of Mississippians, comprising about 1,000,000 acres, has been selected and secured by Gen. Wood, of Natchez, and I learn that a number of other agents are now engaged in examining the country for the purpose of fixing the homes of emigrants from other portions of our country. In addition to these, a number of our people, unconnected with any association, have purchased lands, and are now cultivating cotton in the region of Campinas, some 20 to 30 miles off the line of the St. Paulo Railroad. I cannot pass over this Railroad without a bare mention, as it is destined to be one of the most important in the Empire. It commences at Santos, the chief port of the Province, and after traversing the strip of seacoast lands for a few miles, it mounts to the plateau by a series of inclined planes, ascending to an elevation of 2,600 feet in a direct distance of about five miles. In this stupendous ascent are found some of the most astonishing achievements of engineering skill. The road leads from Santos, through the city of St. Paulo (about 50 miles), to Juandiahy, its present terminus, and distant from Santos 90 miles. Its location has also been surveyed and fixed about 100 miles further into the interior.

PROVINCE OF PARRANA.

This Province lies immediately South of St. Paulo, and between latitudes 22 and 27 degrees South, comprising an area of 96,000 square miles. In most respects, it resembles St. Paulo, except that in agriculture, wealth and refinement, it is not so advanced. Lying mostly without the tropics, its climate is colder. It is noted for its health and the hardy, vigorous character of its people. Much of the interior of the Province affords fine pasturage, and the chief occupation of its people is that of raising cattle, though the soil in many parts is very fertile and the productions of both temperate and tropical climates can be raised with facility and profit. It is from this Province that the Herva Mate, or Yerpon, chiefly comes, of which I have spoken in a former letter. In 1862 the quantity exported amounted to 12,800,000 lbs. Most of its cattle and mules are driven for sale into the other Provinces. The population is about 105,000 of which 20,000 are slaves.—Education is provided for by 48 primary schools, one Lyceum and some 45 private schools.

In this Province, on the Assungury river, has been established a settlement of people from Missouri, under the lead of Dr. John H. Blue, of St. Louis. They have now been established for several years, and the last advices represent them as prospering and doing well.

PROVINCE OF ST. CATHARINES.

This Province lies between 22 and 29 degrees South latitude, and contains an area of about 35,000 square miles. The soil is generally very fertile and well wooded. Its climate is mild, genial and healthy. The recent discovery of coal in this Province has given it vast importance in the Empire. So far as yet ascertained, the field discovered comprises an area of about 20 miles in width by some 30 miles in length, and at a distance of 103 feet from the surface are found three important veins, one of 11 feet, one of 17 feet and one of 25 feet thick, separated from each other by a few feet of blue and fossilliferous clays.

The population of the Province is about 120,000, of which only about 15,000 are slaves. It has one Lyceum and 47 primary schools.

PROVINCE OF SAN PEDRO.

This is the most Southernly of the Provinces, and the last that I shall name. It lies between latitudes 27 and 33 degrees South, entirely beyond the tropics, and comprises an area of about 144,000 square miles.—About two-thirds only of the soil is arable. The climate is temperate and healthy,—the thermometer falling, in winter at times, as low as 24 degrees Fahr. Much of this Province is prairie, dotted with clumps of trees, and the chief occupation of the people, an active, hardy, enterprising race, is cattle raising. From here comes mostly the carne secca, or dried beef, which forms the principal cured meat of Brazil. The sea coast is extensive, low and sandy, and interspersed with numerous lakes. The interior rises into the usual hilly, elevated lands, and among them are found quarries of several kinds of excellent marbles, various useful clays, especially Kaolin, from which porcelain is manufactured, and also precious stones, chiefly cornelians and topazes.

The number of cattle slaughtered in 1862 was 63,560,000. The exports, foreign and coast-wise, in the same year, amounted to $9,704,396. The population is 392,000, of which about 77,000 are slaves and 1,000 Indians. There are 168 primary and some 25 private schools.

INJUNCTION AGAINST THE MILITARY RECONSTRUCTION ACT.—The Baltimore Sun learns that application will shortly be made to the United States Supreme Court, in the names of the States of Mississippi and Alabama, and such other States as may become parties to the cause, to enjoin all proceedings to subject the people of those States to military rule under the recent act of Congress, because it will inflict irreparable injury on said people, and for other reasons. The case will be conducted, it is said, by Judge Sharkey, of Mississippi, and Charles O'Connor, Esq., of New York. The Jackson Mississippian says that Governor Humphreys has given the requisite authority on the part of the State of Mississippi. The Supreme Court is now in session.

It is understood that the question of releasing Jefferson Davis, on bail or on his own recognizance, has been referred to the Attorney-General by the President, for the purpose of obtaining his opinion and the propriety of such action.

GRAND CHARITABLE

PRESENTATION CONCERT,

IN AID OF THE Southern Orphan Association.

—:o:—

Incorporated by the Legislature of Virginia, January 30, 1867.

—o—

TO BE GIVEN AT THE

MARYLAND INSTITUTE

BALTIMORE,

APRIL 30th 1867

—o—

THE PROFITS OF THIS CONCERT WILL BE GIVEN TO THE SOUTHERN ORPHANS' ASSOCIATION TO THE SUBJOINED ADDRESS, FROM THE OFFICERS OF WHICH, WE CALL THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC:

"We, the Officers of the Southern Orphans' Association, for the maintenance and education of the destitute orphans of deceased Southern soldiers and sailors, earnestly solicit the sympathy and co-operation in our

Grand Presentation Concert,

Of all who desire to see the

"HOME AND SCHOOL"

enabled to receive and care for all the needy ones who seek its shelter and protection.

Thanking our friends for their past contributions and assistance, we again appeal to them to help us in a more extensive enterprise. It is the design of this Association to erect a for the orphans of the South, both male and female, on an extensive scale, in the city of Richmond, Virginia. As an inducement to have the building located there, the Common Council of that city have guaranteed a sufficient lot of land, in an elevated and healthful location, and will increase the quantity of land if needed.

It is with a confident hope in a favorable response to this appeal to a public which has never yet failed to sustain a charitable institution, that we have entered into an arrangement with Messrs. L T PALMER & CO., No. 13 Holliday street, Baltimore, to organize a Grand Musical Presentation Concert for its benefit, and earnestly solicit the kindly aid and patronage of the public to ensure its success.

(Signed)
Mrs. J. L. HAMMOND, President.
Mrs. Dr. J. B. BEAN, Vice President.
Mrs. E. A. F. MEARS, Treasurer.

Mrs. Hon. JAS. LYONS, Richmond, Va.
Mrs. JAS. THOMAS, Richmond, Va.
Mrs. THOS. BRANCH, Richmond, Va.

It may seem unnecessary to add a single word to the above address, but calls upon the Institution have been so numerous and pressing, and the struggle through which it is now passing to widen the circle of its charities is of such an arduous nature, that the management cannot too strongly urge upon the

HUMANE AND PATHETIC

everywhere, an active participation in this additional attempt to alleviate the sad condition of great numbers of helpless children, rendered thus by the terrible war through which we have passed. And, assuredly, whatever may have been the relative political views of ladies and gentlemen heretofore, all must agree that the children referred to, could not, by any possibility, have had any agency in bringing about their present

DEPLORABLE AND DESTITUTE CONDITION, and are suitable objects for the charity of all persons of whatever shade of political opinion. The

"HOME AND SCHOOL"

which they now more particularly seek to establish and endow, will be of incalculable benefit by providing not only food and raiment for these helpless ones, but likewise solid and thorough education, thus qualifying them for Future Usefulness to Society at Large.

In order that this appeal may be effectual in enlisting the active interest and co-operation of all classes of persons everywhere, we have concluded to issue for the Grand Presentation Musical Concert,

FERTILIZERS

FOR SPRING CROPS.

WE beg to inform the trade and planters of North Carolina and Virginia, that we are prepared to furnish them with the most approved FERTILIZERS, on the most accommodating terms. We will have a stock of genuine PERUVIAN GUANO, purchased direct from the Agent of the Peruvian Government.

We have now in store, for immediate delivery, 325 tons BRADLEY'S SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME, which won for itself such an enviable reputation in the Cotton and Tobacco counties of North Carolina and Virginia, last season, proving itself equal, and in many important respects, superior to the Peruvian Guano. We give an analysis of it as ascertained by Dr. Hayes, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country:

Results of Analyses Made of Bradley's Patent Super-Phosphate of Lime, as now sold by Wm. L. Bradley.

100 PARTS CONSIST OF

Moisture	5.30
Prepared animal matter, salts of Ammonia, fatty substances and Humus	38.50
Bone Phosphates of Lime, Magnesia and Iron	36.80
(Soluble Phosphates of do. 16 6-10.)
Sulphate of Lime	16.50
Salts	20
Insoluble	2.60
	99.90

The animal matter afforded 4 2-10 parts of Ammonia when it was decomposed, and, as will be seen, nearly one-half of the Bone Phosphate is soluble.

After many analyses of your Super-Phosphate of Lime, made during the last few months, I have found your standard of quality full equal to that of any you have ever sold in former years; and I am satisfied that you include the correct principles in the manufacture. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D., State Assayer.

THE SENTINEL.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, APRIL 2, 1867.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

TO ADVERTISERS.—The public will find the Sentinel one of the best mediums of advertising in the State. Its circulation covers a larger area, perhaps, than any other paper.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—See advertisement of Mitchell, Allen & Co., Newbern.

N. B. Yerger, Mosely Hall, Lenoir Co., offers $25 reward for a stolen mare and Jersey wagon.

W. R. Andrews announces another extensive and splendid lot of Groceries, &c. We invite general attention to his advertisement.

See announcement of the Grand Charitable Presentation Concert at Baltimore.

B. F. Bullock, Assistant Assessor, gives notice to all persons interested in the 9th. Division, 4th. District.

Several important advertisements are crowded out to-day, but shall appear to-morrow.

MAYOR'S COURT.—Needham Bagwell was lodged in the Guard-house, last evening, for intoxication and disorderly conduct.—He was also fined $3 by his Honor.

Ben Weatherspoon (colored,) was up, charged with making an assault upon Albert Blake, cutting him on both of his hands with a knife, knocking down and cutting out one of his pockets, attempting to rob him. He was bound over in the sum of $200 to the Superior Court.

The same individual was also charged with stealing cakes, &c., from the store of A. S. Heide, on Hillsboro' St., on Saturday night last, and bound over in a similar sum. Failing to give bond in either case, he was committed to jail.

Several warrants are out against offenders, which will be reported as soon as returned.

FIRE COMPANY No. 1.—We are requested to announce that there will be a meeting of Fire Company, No. 1, at the Mayor's Office, to morrow (Thursday) evening, at 7½ o'clock, instead of Friday evening, as heretofore given out.

GREAT TRADE AUCTION.—B. P. Williamson & Co., our enterprising Merchants and Auctioneers, will hold their first great Trade Sale for 1867, at their store, on the 10th inst., (next Wednesday.) The attention of merchants and planters, in town and country, is called to this great sale. Boots, Shoes and Hats, Bleached Cottons, Sawn Poplins, Cassimeres, Sugar, Coffee, &c., will be sold on this occasion. Advertisement to morrow.

GEN. SICKLES.—The rumor of General Sickles' visit to this city is true, but he will not be here until some time next week.

COL. STUBBS.—We learn that Col. J. D. Stubbs, Chief Quartermaster of this "District," has been ordered to transfer the Headquarters of his Department to Charleston. Col. S. has rendered himself very acceptable to our people. He attends strictly to the duties of his position.

THE MATCH GAME.—We are informed that the match game between the Crescent and University Base-Ball clubs, for the Champion Ball of the State, has been postponed to Friday week, 12th. inst.

SOUTHERN ORPHANS' ASSOCIATION.—We invite attention to the announcement, in our advertising columns, of the Grand Presentation Concert, in aid of the Southern Orphans Association, to be given at the Maryland Institute, Baltimore, on the 30th. inst. The enterprise has the warm sanction of the managers and officers of the Association, and it is regarded as an efficient and proper means of aiding its great and philanthropic objects. Our worthy young townsman, Mr. John Bragg, at the Southern Express office, is the Agent of the Association for this City, and will afford our citizens an opportunity of purchasing tickets. Full particulars will be found in the lengthy and explicit advertisement.

O. G. PARSELY & Co.—We are pleased to learn, from a letter from Messrs. O. G. Parsely & Co., of Wilmington, to Gov. Worth, that these gentlemen, who have rendered much assistance in procuring and forwarding corn for the destitute in the State, have declined to receive any compensation for their services. This is what might have been expected from this generous, patriotic and enterprising house.

FRUIT.—The Northern papers intimate that the severity of the Winter has destroyed the buds of the peach and cherry, rendering the destruction of the peach and cherry crops almost certain.

RAIL ROADS AND GOVERNMENT TRANSPORTATION.—We learn, from the Wilmington Journal, that a meeting of the managers of some of the Railroads in this State and Virginia was held at the office of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad in that city, on Friday last, for the purpose of adopting a uniform rate to be charged the government for transportation services. After mature deliberation, the following rates were adopted and accepted by Col. J. D. Stubbs, Chief Quartermaster for the military command of North Carolina, who was present at the meeting:

For transporting all government passengers the Railroads are to be allowed 3½ cents, each, per mile; and for all freight, one hundred per cent. more than the rates allowed previous to March 1st. This rate will continue in force for six months from that date.

The following Railroad officials were present:

Hon. R. R. Bridgers, President Wilmington and Weldon Railroad; Col. S. L. Fremont, Eng. & Supt. Wilmington and Weldon Railroad; Capt. H. M. Drane, President Wilmington and Manchester Railroad; Col. J. D. Whitford, President Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad; Dr. W. J. Hawkins, President Raleigh and Gaston Railroad; —— Anderson, Esq., Gen. Supt. North Carolina Railroad; Capt. J. M. Robinson, Gen. Supt. and Managing Director Seaboard & Roanoke Railroad.

THE new Criminal Court of New Hanover was opened in Wilmington, on Tuesday. The charge of Judge Meares to the Grand Jury is spoken of in very high terms by the Dispatch. We know that gentleman well, and we know, also, that he will make an able, upright and efficient Judge.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.—The proper officer of the government having, some time since, notified Gov. Worth of the intention of the government to supply the States with the new Standard Weights and Measures, which have been gotten up in the most scientific manner, with the latest improvements, at a large cost, intimated to him the importance of providing a substantial and suitable room for their proper keeping, and, also, the appointment of a scientific officer to superintend them. This matter the Governor brought before the Legislature, which allotted one of the rooms of the Capitol as a suitable depository for them, and left the appointment of the officer to the discretion of Gov. Worth. We are pleased to announce that Gov. Worth has conferred the appointment upon Rev. Dr. Mason, of this City, whose scientific attainments and devotion to science eminently fit him for the post. We hope Dr. Mason will accept, although the salary ($200) is no inducement for the duties to be performed.

LABOR.—Recent writers, who have been in the West Indies, represent those Islands as rapidly recovering from the idleness and ruin which seemed to follow immediately upon the heels of emancipation. The practice and profits of free labor are becoming apparent in all the Islands, and some of them are outstripping their former commercial prosperity.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

Mr. B. R. Duval, a Druggist of Richmond, publishes in the Farmer, for the benefit of Agriculturalists, the following receipt for making Agricultural Guano. The receipt was given by Dr. Valentine:

No. 1.	Dry Peat,*	20 bushels.
" 2.	Wood Ashes,	3 "
" 3.	Fine Bone Dust,	3 "
" 4.	Calcined Plaster,	3 "
" 5.	Nitrate of Soda,	40 lbs.
" 6.	Sal. Ammoniac,	22 "
" 7.	Carb. Ammonia,	11 "
" 8.	Sulph. Sodae,	20 "
" 9.	Sulph. Magnesia,	10 "
" 10.	Common Salt,	10 "

*If Peat cannot be obtained, use garden mould or clean virgin soil instead.

DIRECTIONS FOR MIXING.

Mix Nos. 1, 2, 3, together; mix 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, in four or five pails of water, or enough to dissolve the ingredients. When dissolved, add the liquid to the mixture, (1, 2, 3) and mix as in making mortar. When thoroughly mixed, add No. 4, (the calcined plaster,) which will absorb the liquid and bring the whole amount to a dry state. Mix under cover, in a dry place—pack so as to exclude air—observe the proportions in making small or large quantities. The above recipe will make one ton, which will manure seven and a half acres of land.

Having been applied to by a number of farmers to whom I furnished it before the war, and who tested its qualities—many thinking it equal to natural guano—the subscriber has made arrangements to furnish any quantity this season, and will sell the ingredients, exclusive of Peat, Ashes, and Salt, (articles on every farm,) at the low price of $25 per ton. All orders carefully and promptly executed.

THE GREAT FLOOD AT CHATTANOOGA.

CHATTANOOGA, EAST TENN., (St. Patrick's Day) March 17, 1867.

I will try to give you a description of the storm and flood at this place.

I have no heart this morning to dwell at length upon the sad calamity which has befallen the citizens of Chattanooga and surrounding country. For miles and miles the land has been covered with water, only a few of the higher points of hills being above the water. In Chattanooga, March 9, 1867, there was eight feet of water in all the streets. The losses of merchants, business men and citizens cannot be estimated. Such a flood has never been known or heard of by any one in this section, and I hope it may never be seen again. You MAY TALK ABOUT reconstruction for the South, but the destruction of the flood has done more to injure this country than both armies in the late war. I am now under the Black Brownlow Code of Laws, and such laws a white man never lived under before. They talk about the persecution of Union men in the South, but I tell you it is all done for political capital. I never was treated better in my life. But I would not vote for Brownlow to save his life, if I had a vote. (For saying the above it is a fine of three dollars, according to the Black Laws of Brownlow.) The destruction of property here has been fearful, and there is no one who can estimate the loss. The railroads between Nashville and this place are all out of repair; also; all the roads between here and all Southern points. B.

Napoleon, accompanied by Eugenie, formally opened the exposition yesterday. There was no boisterousness from the masses present.

LONDON, April 2.

Bombay advices represent the growth of cotton as greatly increased.

In the House of Lords, last night, the Duke of Buckingham, the Colonial Secretary said that the transfer of the Russian American possessions to the United States was a matter of indifference to England.

THE SENATE—EXECUTIVE SESSION.

WASHINGTON, April 3.

The Executive session is somewhat stormy.—The Radical Senators favor rejecting the nominations as fast as they come in, until the President yields, while the more conservative and homesick favor the confirming of good, regardless of politics. No rule of action has been adopted.

PERSONAL.—We had the pleasure of meeting, in this City, on yesterday, his Excellency Gov. WORTH, who, with his estimable lady, is here on a visit to his son-in-law and daughter—Dr. W. C. Roberts and lady. Gov. Worth arrived on Saturday evening and left on yesterday evening. He was serenaded on Saturday night by the Salisbury Brass Band, which, with the large number of citizens assembled, he addressed very briefly, advising them to give cheerful obedience of the laws of the land, and a cordial co-operation in the work of reconstruction. During his stay he was called upon by most of our leading citizens, and received that attention to which he is so eminently entitled, as well from his high character and great personal worth, as from the office which he fills. He seems to be in the enjoyment of excellent health and spirits.—Salisbury North State.

A FORTHCOMING ROMANCE.—We learn that Hon. Edward McPherson, Clerk of the House of Representatives of the United States, is collecting the materials for, and has, indeed, commenced to write, the "Life of Thaddeus Stevens."—Washington Chronicle.

The Fall Session of this Institution closed 23rd. day of December. The Spring Session opened the 1st. Wednesday in January, and will continue 20 weeks.

The success of this school has been without a parallel. A new building has just been completed, by which a large additional number can be accommodated. We are determined to make our pupils as comfortable as they can be made anywhere, and to afford them all the advantage for a thorough and extensive education, that can be found at any First-class Female College, North or South.

The location is a most delightful one. The Mineral Water is too well known to the whole country to need a remark. Even invalid young ladies may secure a thorough education, and at the same time the restoration of their health. Reference is made to every intelligent Physician in the State, as well as to the hundreds who have found relief here.

The young ladies all worship in the College Chapel, and hence no extra clothing is required.—In the single item of dress parents can save 25 per cent. of the entire expense incurred by sending to Boarding Schools located in cities or villages.—This Institution is certainly one of the cheapest and most easy of access in the Southern States.—Besides, it offers the most superior advantages in every respect.

THE SENTINEL.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1867.

A LESSON IN ITSELF SUBLIME.

A lesson in itself sublime,
A truism worth unbinning,
Is this: "I take no note of time
Save when the sun is shining.
These motto words a dial bore,
And wisdom never preaches
To human hearts a better lore
Than this short sentence teaches;
As life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely,
Let us forget its pain and care,
And note its bright hours only.

There is no grove on earth's broad chart,
But has some bird to cheer it;
So hope sings in every heart,
Although we may not hear it;
And if to-day the heavy wing
Of sorrow is oppressing,
Perchance to-morrow's sun will bring
The weary heart a blessing;
For life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely;
Then let us forget its toil and care,
And note its bright hours only.

We bid the joyous moments haste,
And then forget their glitter;
We take the cup of life and taste
No portion but the bitter;
But we should teach our hearts to deem
Its sweetest drops the strong'st;
And pleasant hours should ever seem
To linger round us longest;
As life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely,
Let us forget its toil and care,
And note its bright hours only.

The darkest shadows of the night
Are just before the morning;
Then let us wait the coming light,
All bodiless phantoms scorning;
And while we're passing on the tide
Of time's fast ebbing river,
Let us pluck the blossoms by its side,
And bless the gracious Giver;
As life is sometimes bright and fair,
And sometimes dark and lonely,
We should forget its pain and care,
And note its bright hours only.

CESSION OF RUSSIAN AMERICA.

A treaty of the greatest importance to the country was concluded last night, at the State Department, between the Secretary of State, on behalf of the President of the United States, and the Russian representative, on behalf of the Emperor of Russia, in which the Russian government agrees to convey to the United States government all its possessions on the American continent, known as Russian America, in consideration of the payment of $7,000,000.

This important negotiation was fully discussed at the Cabinet Council yesterday, and last evening, at about eight o'clock, the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of State received at the State Department the representative of Russia, and it was not till two o'clock this morning that the treaty was brought to a satisfactory conclusion.

The treaty will have to be ratified by the Senate, and both houses of Congress must concur in making the appropriation for the payment of the purchase money, before the treaty becomes an accomplished fact. The amount of the purchase-money is so small, when the size and value of the territory is considered, that the transfer is regarded as a cession rather than a sale, and suggestive of the sympathy of Russia for America.

It is looked upon as an important step towards the absorption of the whole continent by the United States; and, considering that the possession of Russian America lems in the British American possessions, it is thought by knowing diplomats here that the transaction will probably be regarded as a hostile measure by Great Britain, and may possibly meet with remonstrances on the part of that Power, from its point of view as a belligerent in case of war.

The purchased territory covers upward of four hundred thousand square miles, and though now containing only one hundred thousand inhabitants, half of whom are Esquimaux, it is believed that, under American auspices, it would at a comparatively early period contain a population sufficient to increase the number of States in the Union to fifty. The fisheries are very extensive, but the principal commercial wealth of the country is in its fur trade, which would, henceforth, be altogether controlled by American merchants.

The acquisition of Russian America is viewed here as of far reaching importance, in a commercial as well as a political and strategical point of view. Not the least advantage thus gained would be the entire control of the projected Russo-American Asiatic Telegraph, which promises to link the United States to India and China by way of Russia.—*Cor. Congressional Reconstruction Acts.

For the information of our readers we republish as follows the late reconstruction act of Congress, known as the Sherman-Shellabarger bill. We shall add to it the Howard Amendment, Test Oath and the Supplementary act, all of which will be kept standing until the necessary information they contain shall be generally and fully understood.

THE RECONSTRUCTION ACT.

AN ACT to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States.

[Passed over the President's Veto, March 2d, 1867.]

WHEREAS, no legal State governments or adequate protection for life or property now exists in the rebel States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Texas, and Arkansas; and whereas it is necessary that peace and good order should be enforced in said States until loyal and Republican State Governments can be legally established: Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That said rebel States shall be divided into military districts and made subject to the military authority of the United States, as hereinafter prescribed, and for that purpose Virginia shall constitute the first district; North Carolina and South Carolina the second district; Georgia, Alabama and Florida the third district; Mississippi and Arkansas the fourth district; and Louisiana and Texas the fifth district.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the President to assign to the command of each of said districts an officer of the army, not below the rank of Brigadier general, and to detail a sufficient military force to enable such officer to perform his duties and enforce his authority within the district to which he is assigned.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of each officer assigned as aforesaid to protect all persons in their rights of person and property, to suppress insurrection, disorder and violence, and to punish or cause to be punished all disturbers of the public peace and criminals, and to this end he may allow local civil tribunals to take jurisdiction of and to try offenders, or, when in his judgement it may be necessary for the trial of offenders, he shall have power to organize military commissions or tribunals for that purpose, and all interference, under color of State authority, with the exercise of military authority under this act shall be null and void.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That all persons put under military arrest by virtue of this act shall be tried without unnecessary delay, and no cruel or unusual punishment shall be inflicted; and no sentence of any military commission or tribunal hereby authorized, affecting the life or liberty of any person, shall be executed until it is approved by the officer in command of the district, and the laws and regulations for the government of the army shall not be affected by this act, except in so far as they conflict with its provisions. Provided, That no sentence of death, under the provisions of this act, shall be carried into effect without the approval of the President.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That when the people of any one of said rebel States shall have formed a constitution of government in conformity with the Constitution of the United States in all respects, framed by a convention of delegates elected by the male citizens of said State, twenty one years old and upwards, of whatever race, color or previous condition, who have been resident in said State for one year previous to the day of such election, except such as may be disfranchised for participation in the rebellion, or for felony at common law; and when such constitution shall provide that the elective franchise shall be enjoyed by all such persons as have the qualifications herein stated for electors of delegates; and when such constitution shall be ratified by a majority of the persons voting on the question of ratification, who are qualified as electors for delegates; and when such Constitution shall be ratified by a majority of the persons voting on the question of ratification, who are qualified as electors for delegates; and when such constitution shall have been submitted to Congress for examination and approval, and Congress shall have approved the same; and when the said State, by a vote of its legislature, elected under said constitution, shall have adopted the amendment to the constitution of the United States, proposed by the Thirty-ninth Congress, and known as article fourteen; and when said article shall have become a part of the constitution of the United States, said State shall be declared entitled to representation in Congress, and Senators and Representatives shall be admitted therefrom, on their taking the oath prescribed by law; and then and thereafter the preceding sections of this act shall be inoperative in said State. Provided, That no person excluded from the privilege of holding office by said amendment to the constitution of the United States shall be eligible to election as a member of the convention to frame a constitution for any of said rebel States, nor shall any such person vote for members of such convention.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That until the people of said rebel States shall be by law admitted to representation in the Congress of the United States, any civil government which may exist therein shall be deemed provisional only, and in all respects subject to the paramount authority of the United States at any time to abolish, modify, control or supersede the same; and all elections to any office under such provisional governments all persons shall be entitled to vote, and none others, who are entitled to vote under the provisions of the fifth section of this act; and no person shall be eligible to any office under such provisional governments who would be disqualified from holding office under the provisions of the third article of said constitutional amendment.

SCHUYLER COLFAX,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
LAFAYETTE S. FOSTER,
President of the Senate pro tem.

The following is the Constitutional Amendment referred to in the 4th section of the Sherman Bill:

Proposed Constitutional Amendment.

ARTICLE XIV.

Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Sec. 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, representatives in Congress, executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State being twenty-one years of age and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Sec. 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice-President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid and comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may, by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

Sec. 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims, shall be held illegal and void.

Sec. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article.

The following is the oath of office referred to in the 5th section of the bill, and also in the 6th of the Supplementary Bill:

An Act to Prescribe an Oath of Office and for Other Purposes.

Be it enacted, That hereafter any person elected or appointed to any office of honor or profit under the government of the United States, either in the civil, military or naval department of the public service, except the President of the United States, shall before entering upon the duties of such office, and before being entitled to any of the salary or other emolument thereof, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I, A B, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the U. S. since I have been a citizen thereof; that I have voluntarily given no aid countenance, counsel or encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility thereto; that I have never sought nor accepted, nor attempted to exercise the functions of any office whatever, under any authority, or pretended authority, in hostility to the United States; that I have never yielded a voluntary support to any pretended government, power or constitution within the United States, hostile or inimical thereto; and I do further swear (or affirm) that to the best of my knowledge and ability, I will support and defend the constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter. So help me God," which oath, so taken and signed, shall be preserved among the files of the Court, Houses of Congress, or the department to which said officer may appertain. And any person who may falsely take said oath shall be guilty of perjury, and on conviction, in addition to the penalties now prescribed for that offence, shall be deprived of his office, and rendered incapable, forever after, of holding any office or place under the United States.

Approved July 2, 1862.
